

Italian Optical Cable Head Manufacturer Direct Sales Point

AI Overview

Key Italian optical cable manufacturers with direct sales include Tratos, Cavicel, TECNIKABEL, and Sami, offering a wide range of fiber optic solutions for telecommunications and industrial applications. Leading Manufacturers Tratos Group is a major Italian manufacturer supplying optical fiber cables to Telecom Italia since 1982. They produce Step Index single-mode and Graded Index multimode cables, ranging from 1 to over 2,000 fibers, in loose tube, ribbon, and hybrid copper-fiber configurations. Tratos also provides FTTH-ready solutions for high-speed broadband and supports underground, aerial, and indoor installations. Cavicel S.p.A. specializes in designing and producing fiber optic cables for global markets, with installations in over 50 countries. They focus on high-quality, innovative solutions suitable for telecommunications and infrastructure networks. TECNIKABEL manufactures tailor-made optical fiber cables for transportation, defense, telecommunications, and extreme environments. They emphasize quality, sustainability, and in-house R&D, offering customized solutions for specialized applications. Sami produces special optical cables according to customer specifications, including fire-resistant, armored, watertight, and high-temperature cables. Their production complies with international standards (EN, IEC, ANSI) and supports both civil and military applications. Direct Sales and B2B Access Many of these manufacturers provide direct sales points or B2B contact options: Tratos: Contact via their website for direct inquiries and project-specific orders. Cavicel: Offers engineering support and direct consultation for infrastructure projects. TECNIKABEL: Direct manufacturer relationships allow customization and control over production processes. Sami: Provides technical support and direct collaboration for custom cable designs. Additionally, B2B directo...
