

Manufacturer of NRZ optical network switches

Overview

typically refers to equipment facilitating the use of a. Typically, this includes,,, and other related hardware. This is a list of notable vendors who produce network hardware.

AI Overview

NVIDIA LinkX is a key manufacturer of NRZ optical network switches and interconnects, complemented by other optical switch vendors like Polatis, DiCon Fiberoptics, and Viavi Solutions. NVIDIA LinkX NVIDIA's LinkX product family provides a wide range of optical and copper interconnects compatible with NRZ modulation, supporting data rates from 25G to 400G. These products include direct attach copper (DAC) cables, active optical cables (AOCs), and transceivers, designed for high-performance computing, hyperscale data centers, and AI systems. LinkX solutions are optimized for low latency, high reliability, and energy efficiency, making them suitable for switch-to-switch, switch-to-server, and GPU/CPU interconnects. Other Optical Switch Manufacturers Several companies specialize in optical switching solutions that can integrate with NRZ-based networks: Polatis (HUBER+SUHNER Polatis): Offers all-optical circuit switches with SDN-enabled control, supporting configurations from 8x8 to 384x384 ports. Polatis switches are used in telecom, AI data centers, and photonic cross-connects, providing fast switching speeds and low optical loss. DiCon Fiberoptics: Produces fiber optic components and optical switches for data centers, telecom, and industrial applications. Their switches enable efficient routing of optical signals without electrical conversion, maintaining high-speed performance. Viavi Solutions: Manufactures optical network testing and switching e...
