

Purchase price of distribution boxes and cabinets

AI Overview

Distribution boxes and cabinets range widely in price depending on size, material, protection class, and customization, with residential units starting from modest amounts and industrial cabinets costing significantly more. Typical Price

Ranges
Residential Distribution Boxes: Standard single-phase or small three-phase units typically range from $50 to $300, depending on the number of circuits, material (plastic or metal), and IP rating for indoor or outdoor use.
Commercial and Industrial Cabinets: Larger three-phase or modular cabinets with higher amperage capacity, advanced control systems, and weatherproof enclosures can range from $500 to several thousand dollars per unit.
Hensel Distribution Boxes: According to Hensel's 2025 price list, sizes vary from small boxes (Size 2) to large enclosures (Size 50), with prices depending on color (grey or black), cable entry options, and protection class.

Additional items like sealing compounds or mounting accessories are priced separately.
Factors Affecting Price
Material and Durability: Corrosion-resistant metal or high-grade polycarbonate enclosures cost more than basic plastic units.
Protection Class: IP-rated enclosures for outdoor use or harsh environments carry premium pricing.
Number of Circuits and Amperage: More circuits and higher amperage capacity increase cost.
Customization: OEM branding, modular busbar fitment, top cable entry modifications, and integration with building management systems can significantly affect pricing.
Energy Monitoring and Smart Features: Units with digital displays, remote monitoring, or load management capabilities are priced higher but offer long-term energy savings.
Procurement Options
Wholesale Orders: Prices per unit decrease with larger orders, and some suppliers offer next-day shipping for standard stock items.
Online Retailers: Platforms like Intratec provide a range of ind...
