

What are the functions of fiber optic cables for home delivery

Overview

Leading ISPs and cable providers use fiber-optic networks to deliver gigabit-speed internet, HD television, and on-demand video directly to homes and offices. Unlike traditional coaxial cables, fiber maintains consistent performance regardless of distance or electrical interference. Fiber to the home is one of many. The demand for reliable and fast data transmission is growing rapidly in areas such as smart homes, Industry 4.0 and cloud computing, pushing the existing network of copper and coaxial cables to their physical limits. A fiber-optic cable holds this string in its center, allowing light to pass through the glass. The sender device converts data into light.
