

Zimbabwe Mobile Fiber Optic Company

AI Overview

Key mobile fiber optic providers in Zimbabwe include TelOne, Powertel, NetOne, Econet Wireless, Telecontract, and DFA Zimbabwe, offering a mix of broadband, enterprise, and wholesale fiber services. Major Providers TelOne is Zimbabwe's largest fixed-line operator and a major fiber optic provider. It offers ADSL, fiber-to-the-home (FTTH), leased internet access, and a national backbone network spanning over 3,000 km using fiber optic, microwave, and copper systems. TelOne's network connects major urban centers including Harare, Mutare, Gweru, Bulawayo, and Victoria Falls, and it operates an internet hub with over 10 Gbps international bandwidth via multiple submarine cables (EASSy, WACS, SEACOM) for both domestic and international connectivity. Powertel Communications, the ICT arm of ZESA, provides fiber optic-based services including Virtual Private Networks (VPNs), mobile internet, and carrier services. Its Optical Ground Wire (OPGW) backbone spans key routes such as Harare to Plumtree and Harare to Mutare, with regional interconnections to Botswana and Mozambique. Powertel also focuses on rural connectivity and enterprise ICT solutions. NetOne is a government-owned operator offering mobile and fiber services, with extensive 4G coverage and plans for 5G deployment. It provides voice, data, and internet services across Zimbabwe, targeting both urban and underserved areas. Econet Wireless is the largest mobile operator in Zimbabwe, providing mobile communications, mobile money, and advanced 4G/5G services. Econet also supports fiber optic broadband solutions for residential and business customers. Telecontract specializes in fiber optic solutions, delivering ultra-fast broadband, WiMax, and VSAT services for both commercial and residential clients. DFA Zimbabwe (Private) Limited focuses on wholesale and open-access dark fiber, enabling operators and service providers to lease secure transmission infrastructure for metro and long-haul networks.
